Subject: ERP advertisement in Japan

Dear Max,

Please inform me:

1. To what extent do we want to expand the advertisement of the ERP?
   - What is the background for restricting the journals for advertisement only to Science and Nature?
   - Internet homepages and official journals of scientific societies often have a page for research funds available. Would you consider posting the ERP to such sites/journals?
   - Do we have any experience in setting up a booth or a desk at some public scientific meetings (e.g. SOT?)?

2. Are there any criteria for selection of scientific societies if we are to set up a booth (or a desk)?

some guidance

For your information please find below examples of public scientific conferences to be held in Japan, which appear to fit into Research Focus.

- For public distribution of the brochure at conferences, we need to purchase a space, a few months ahead of the conference date. Exhibition booth is generally available at 100,000-200,000yen (US$800-1,600), and in some conferences, "desk" is availabe at about half a price of a booth. I don't think it is necessary to be manned all the time, so a "desk" would be appropriate ("take-one-free" basis with a box to receive business cards).
- Do you think it is worthwhile to distribute the brochure in such a form ("take-one-free") after the deadline of this year's cycle?

Please let me know so that I can move forward.

Additionally, the "booth" I mentioned on the phone regarding the upcoming JPN Soc Toxicol meeting has been sold out. I asked for just a "desk", but it was not available also (according to the administrative office, this falls into the category of industrial activities/advertisement and co-sponsors have already been determined). I plan to attend the meeting and distribute the brochure to scientists who show interest.

Best regards,
Kohji
